TALKING TREATIES

Wednesday, November 18, 2026 at 6:30pm

at the Marquette Regional History Center

In conjunction with the celebration of America's Independence, we focus on the Native American treaties in our region. The Marquette Regional History Center is honored to host Jason Schlender, the Executive Administrator at the Great Lakes Indian Fish & Wildlife Commission (GLIFWC) for this presentation. Join us for Schlender's talk, A Timeline of Anishinaabe Treaty Rights in the Northern Great Lakes.

GLIFWC was formed in 1984 to assist its eleven member bands in the implementation and protection of their off-reservation treaty rights. One of the most formidable obstacles to achieving these goals has been public misunderstanding of treaties, treaty rights, and tribal sovereignty. We will recognize four major regional treaties, see how they function today, and learn how they are part of our American story.
